MUSCLE SHOALS HARNESSSED PRISONERS BY DAY, LEGGERS BY NIGHT

FEDERAL ATTORNEY PROBING LAXITY IN DADE COUNTY JAIL

A Defendant was Given Permission To Visit Relatives, Charge

WEEPING PROBE NOW UNDERWAY

Department Of Justice Agents Obtain "Evidence"

(Associated Press)

TAMPA, Fla., Aug. 29—Charges that federal prisoners, confined in the Dade county jail, had been released temporarily for the purpose of "bootlegging" have resulted in United States Attorney W. M. Guber starting an investigation involving the sheriff, jailer and guard.

Prisoners convicted at the last term federal court in Miami were being allowed freedom and bootlegging privileges at night and confined in the jail in the daytime, Guber said in a letter to him indicated.

Crimes of officials was responsible for their confinement also it was reported.

"I was informed recently that two federal prisoners from Tampa who had been convicted in federal court in the county last spring, were being allowed privileges by the guards not accorded ordinary prisoners," said the district attorney.

He requested the department of justice officials at Jacksonville to send an agent to investigate the report and results of the investigation were being awaited.

The inquiry revealed that the prisoners were released from jail at night and were known to be engaged in bootlegging.

He also found that one of the federal prisoners was allowed to visit his wife in West Florida," Mr. Guber said. "At the time we started the investigation this man was at his home in West Florida."

The Miami officials got word in a way that the department of justice was working on the case and telephoned the prisoner to return at once.

When our agent reached Miami, the man was confined in a lonely cell away from the other inmates and being treated at the inhuman treatment he had at the hands of the guards, the damage had been done and the proof of his release.

He first started our investigation about the jail guards alone," he said, "but further development led me to request the department of justice to include all jail officials responsible for the safety of prisoners. This, of course, included the sheriff of Dade county."

The district attorney has been called to Jacksonville tonight to confer with department of justice officials about the case. He refused to use the name of the prisoner alleged to visit West Florida.

Muriel's Husband Is In a Hospital

(Associated Press)

STON, Aug. 29—Authorities at Massachusetts general hospital refused to make public any information concerning the condition of Muriel Church, Jr., recently married to Muriel Vanderbilt, who was injured in a Back Bay street yesterday morning.

According to the police report he was unconscious and bleeding from an injury on his head. Police said Church was unable to explain his injuries. His wife stated, however, young Church was struck by an automobile just as he stepped from the curb.

It was reported last night his injuries were not serious. Mrs. Church was staying with her mother in law, but hurried here when informed of the accident.

Dr. Thomas W. Young, Los Angeles society dentist, accused of smothering to death his beautiful wife, was found dead in his cell in Los Angeles. A wire bound his neck, and his wrists bore red marks where he twisted the wire and choked himself to death.

TWO OFFICERS ARE KILLED BY 'SHINERS

Bodies Are Discovered Near Old Mill In Georgia County

(Associated Press)

GRAY, Ga., August 29.—Feeling against moonshiners was high here today, following the death yesterday of two Jones County officers who were shot to death while on a hunt for illicit stills.

A coroner's verdict declared that Floyd Malone, county policeman, and Frank Tucker, whose shot-riddled bodies were found at an abandoned mill near Haddock late yesterday, were murdered by unknown parties.

The policeman and his assistant left Gray early yesterday in search for moonshiners in the lower part of the county. Twelve hours later their bodies were found near an old mill. They had been laid out on the ground with apparent care, their weapons having been placed near their hands.

Malone's bloodstained automobile stood near the spot. In it, Sheriff Middlebrook believed, the slayers had conveyed their victims after the pair had been shot to death near the still which location deputies today were seeking.

Police Working On Elliot Robbery

Police are working on the robbery of the Council Elliott home Wednesday evening, but have obtained no clues, it came known Saturday. While Mr. and Mrs. Elliott were away Wednesday evening, a burglar was said to have prized open a window and escaped with a quantity of clothing.

UNIVERSITY DEAN VISITS ATTORNEYS

Erection Of Building To House Law School Now Planned

Dean A. J. Farrah, of the University of Alabama law school, was a Twin City visitor this week interviewing local attorneys in regard to the plans for the erection of a $100,000 building on the University campus, to house the new law school there.

Dean Farrah has undertaken to raise about $40,000 of the amount necessary from the alumni of the school and other friends in Alabama. He met with a liberal response in Morgan county it was stated today, about $300 being subscribed for the work. Many of the donations were given by attorneys who were not graduates of the Alabama law school, but who are interested in its work and development and in legal education generally.

The visitor spoke glowingly of the Twin Cities, declaring he was very much impressed with their industrial and commercial outlook.

NEW ORLEANS ROW TO BE INVESTIGATED

Secretary Andrews To Get Reports From U. S. Operatives

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29—Assistant Secretary Andrews has ordered special agents of the customs service to start an immediate investigation of conditions in New Orleans, which resulted in the indictment of Walter L. Cohen, collector of the port there, who, with several others, has been charged with conspiracy under the prohibition laws.

The Assistant Secretary said he had telegraphed instructions to the agents to make a thorough inquiry and to report to him at the earliest moment. In the meantime Cohen will be allowed to continue in office. Andrews stated, however, that should the agents' report disclose sufficient circumstances, Cohen likely will be suspended.

He said the action depended entirely on the reports of the federal operatives for thus far neither he nor Director Camp of the customs service, has received any official word concerning the incident.

DECISION BY COURT FIXES SCHEDULES OF WATER RATES HERE

Last Step Is Taken To End Controversy Over Charges

INCREASED COST OF OPERATIONS

Power Bill Higher Now Says Statement Of Commission

The United States federal court has handed down a decision which makes final the compromised rate schedule for water service in Albany, Decatur and Fairview, the order having been prepared and handed down Friday afternoon in Montgomery.

The rate schedule, already published in The Daily, will become effective on October 1.

The present rates will be effective for the current quarter, consumers paying the present rates for July, August and September.

The public service commission in a statement accompanying the new compromise rate schedule, reviewed the negotiations leading up to the final decision. The commission pointed out that it had set the case for disposition at a date late enough to give it time to investigate the increased costs of operation of the local plant.

There has been an increase in the cost of operating the local water system, the commission sets forth, principally of about $4,000 per annum in the matter of power rates. Under an old agreement, the water company obtained a low power rate by doing its pumping at night, during so-called "off peak" hours. Since March 1925, however, the company has been "compelled to use such power during the day as well as the night in pumping its water, and therefore it was not in position to demand or receive its electric current at off-peak rates, but has been compelled to pay the standard wholesale rate for such current."

This and other increases convinced the commission that some increase in rates should be given, but there should be some modification of the proposed schedule, the statement says.

The commission encloses in its report to the court a copy of an order, placing in effect the compromised rates, enclosing as exhibits the various agreements, heretofore published in The Daily.

The following is the final decree of the federal court:

In the District Court of the United States for the Northern Division of the Middle District of Alabama. Alabama Water Company, a corporation, Plaintiff vs. Alabama Public Service Commission, et al., Defendants.

The original bill of complaint was filed in this cause on to wit July 1, 1925. Pursuant to the prayer of said bill and in accordance with the statutes in such cases made and provided and upon the showing made by the plaintiff, a restraining order was made and entered by Hon. Henry D. Clayton Judge of said District Court on July 14, 1925, restraining the defendant, until the further order of said court, from attempting to compel the plaintiff, its officers, agents or employees, to observe or enforce the rates theretofore in effect under orders of said Alabama Public Service for water service of the plaintiff at Albany, Decatur and Fairview in said State, and from interfering with plaintiff in the collection of rates set forth in its revised schedule of rates filed with said Commission on to-wit May 30, 1925. (Said revised schedule of rates pending endorsement "Filed" by said Commission on to-wit June 1, 1925.) Said restraining order issued by the Judge of

STRANGE TALE OF MISSING HANDBAG AND PAPERS TOLD

Florence Attorney Is Victim Of Hard Luck Here

FOUR NEGROES TAKEN BY COPS

Search For The Stolen Articles Leads To Courtland

A strange tale of a stolen handbag missing papers, and a far flung search which found, not the papers sought, but five gallons of whiskey, instead, came to light here Saturday when four negroes received fines of $25 and costs in Decatur police court on charges of petty larceny. The negroes fined were: Percy Jones, Nathan Gilchrist, William Gilchrist and John Kyle.

Wallace Porter, prominent attorney of Florence, was motoring through here enroute home from Birmingham and had stopped near the intersection of Lee and Perry streets and Second avenue, to obtain supplies for his car, when the bag, containing valuable papers and other articles was stolen. He reported the theft to the Decatur police, expressing the belief the bag had been taken by four negroes in a car.

The police went to work on the case immediately and trailed the negro's automobile to a point where the machine was found parked and the driver asleep. He was taken into custody and it was learned that three of the quartette had gone to Courtland, where they are said to have resided and where one is said to have operated a store.

The police, still hot on the trail of the bag and the missing papers, went to Courtland and obtained the services of a Lawrence County officer to help them. A search of the store was instigated, but instead of finding the papers, officers reported they found five gallons of whiskey.

During the search, one of the negroes is alleged to have dropped a pistol on the floor. None of them would claim it, so officers took it into custody also. The bag finally was

City Of Detroit To Give $10,000 Present To Diamond Star

(Associated Press)

DETROIT, Aug. 29.—A great city today paid tribute to a great ball player, when Detroit officially extolled Tyrus Raymond Cobb at Navin field this afternoon, with the 38 year old veteran of 20 American league campaigns standing bareheaded at the plate, shaking hands with thousands of fans, who passed in line before him.

Tonight he will be honored at a banquet and presented with a $10,000 gift, paid for by the City of Detroit by a vote of the council, at the suggestion of Mayor J. W. Smith.

Speakers at the banquet will include Cornelius McQuillendy, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, Jimmie Callahan, one time director of the White Sox, Billie Evans, American League umpire; Bugs Baer, sports humorist; F. J. Navin, owner of the Detroit club and Mayor Smith.

Yes, the Soul Exists. It Looks Like a Strike. One Billion Years Old. Money Goes to Money.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE (Copyright, 1925, By The Star Co.) For Albany-Decatur Daily.

CHARLES HENRI, distinguished French mathematician, declares that he can prove, scientifically, the existence of a soul, or something much like it. He finds in the human being some utterly elusive and ideal fluid defying all the scales and microscopes in the world.

MANY CHRISTIANS for many years have put it in simpler language, "I know That My Redeemer Liveth." There is something inside of that "elusive" and "ideal fluid" which says to every human being, "Life is not all. You live elsewhere."

LATE yesterday afternoon a coal strike appeared inevitable. The advantage will be with owners of the mines against the workman.

The mine owners have plenty of coal on hand. Soft coal can be used in place of hard, oil to a large extent, in place of either. And oil at this moment is cheap and plentiful. If a coal strike does come, it may help owners of oil stocks more than it will help the striking coal men.

Science can't be sure about the exact age, but it knows that it is at least 1,000,000,000 years. And the crust of the earth as it stands now may be as much as ten billion years old.

THINK of ten thousand millions of years, compared with the 12,000 years that have passed since the end of the late stone age.

Then remember that science guarantees to this earth several hundred million years more of existence with plenty of warmth and sunlight. There is plenty of time ahead to settle problems, including the various "perils," brown, black, yellow etc.

OPERATION IS DAWN OF NEW ELECTRICAL AGE, VALLEY THINKS

Power Generated Now Being Flashed To Many Sections

WILL FINISH DAM BY JUNE FIRST

Thousands Of Tourists Beseige Officials Asking for Passes

(Associated Press)

FLORENCE, Ala., August 29.—Harnessing of Muscle Shoals, a dream of many years, is an actuality today.

Water was turned on one of the great batteries of turbines and the energy generated is being flashed through an inter-connected system, in to several Southern states.

This achievement will go down in history, inhabitants of the Tennessee Valley believe, as making a new electrical age.

The demonstration today constituted the first concrete results of an expenditure of about $51,000,000 by the federal government. The building of Wilson Dam and the great steam power plant adjacent was begun nearly seven years ago. The work now is more than 95 per cent complete.

About June 1, next year, the workmen will turn over a finished job. There were 2,221 persons employed on the reservation this week. The force has been gradually reduced from 5,000.

On the eve of completion, Wilson Dam is the mecca for thousands of tourists. Not a day passes but officers are besieged for passes. More than 25,000 visitors were registered during one month of the year.

The dam is described by government officers as one of the engineering achievements of the century. It is the longest concrete structure in the United States and from crest to river bed reaches a height of 122 feet. The length is nearly 5,000 feet.

The generator started today is one in a battery of four generating 30,000 horsepower each. Four others of 36,000 horsepower are being placed and the eight combined turbines will have a capacity of 264,000 horsepower.

Ten other turbines will be added as the demand for current increases. The total power to be produced is reckoned at 640,000 horsepower.

Long before the world war the government had interested itself in Muscle Shoals. The question of navigation from Paducah to Chattanooga and even Knoxville had received serious attention and certain appropriations.

Not until the world war, however, was anything undertaken on a gigantic scale. The government found in the power possibilities of the Shoals and the strategic location elements that made it an ideal site for a war plant.

Work was started with a vim and continued until the end of the war. Then operations were stopped and a period of waiting came to the district vitally interested and to government officials. The question later came before congress and the final disposition of the property is still an undecided matter and one of great public interest.

Meantime it was decided to continue the original plans and money was appropriated to complete Wilson Dam and some of the other units. Over night the Shoals district experienced a metamorphosis and the hum of activity has increased month by month, the uncertainty of final disposition seemingly being lost sight of in the effort to harness the water that for the way they did there was no knowing. He had covered all his tracks so carefully.

"That is why I looked at you that night at the station," she said in a subdued little voice. "To see if you had anything against him."

"Not a thing," he declared, "not a thing in the world. I like him."

"I know it," whispered Jerry.

CHAPTER XI

How Jerry Loved

There was a nurse in the room, but at a sign from the one who brought them, she went out, quickly, smiling back over her shoulder. Duane lay very still on the white bed. His eyes were closed. The olive tan of his skin was ivory white.

He opened his eyes and a warm brightness flashed into them when he saw Jerry beside him. He smiled—that whimsical, tender smile whose gay airiness had charmed and stirred her from the first.

"Jerry," he said, and the tender

"A good idea, Jerry," he said. "I can't say I consider Duane particularly born under a mechanical star. You shall have him. At a great sacrifice on my part, of course. But I can only tell you in fairness that your young man will not be financially dependent on you and your houses. He had enough left out of the wreckage to tide him over, and he thinks of going into Iowa real estate on his own account. Your interests will dovetail very neatly along that line, won't they?"

Jerrold flushed with pleasure over the warmth of admiration for his effort that he met in the eyes of Duane and of Prudence, who whispered proudly that she couldn't have done it better herself. But Jerry turned great, questioning eyes upon Duane.

"Then you were not completely ruined, as the papers said?"

"Not completely."

"Then why did you come here?"

Duane laughed, held her to him, kissed her hair.

"Then after all you really did—a little—"

"she began eagerly, unable to voice the hope that was almost a prayer within her heart."

"Oh, Jerry, a very great deal," he whispered.

Jerry felt she could not possibly know a greater happiness than she felt in showing Duane her houses a few weeks later when he was out of the hospital and quite himself again. Under his interest, his admiration, his unbounded pride in her accomplishment, she glowed with a glad delight.

"It isn't really the work," she explained, leaning back against the banister of a circular staircase which had cost her two hundred dollars more than her figures had allowed. "It is just like play, with something to show for it besides. Two things to show for it—a sweet little place for someone to live and set an example to the neighborhood, in the first place." She paused impressively.

"And in the second place," Duane encouraged her, reaching almost as by habit for her eager expressive young hands, his eyes feasting upon the radiance of her beauty.

"And in the second place, the bank account of Fairy Geraldine Harmer!"

"Do you know what is going to sound the sweetest thing in the world one of these days?" he asked very softly, very soberly, drawing her to him. He whispered the rest. "Jerry Allerton."

Jerry flushed deeply, and her brilliant eyes gave him a dazzling glance beneath the cloudy lashes.

"Come quickly, and see the rest of the house," she begged.

There were other brooding, harassed, middle western fathers who foresaw ill results for the entire prairie land in Jerry's joyous romance. It was Irvin Weatherly who voiced this fear to Jerrold.

"I'm surprised you'd permit such a thing," he said plaintively. "You're setting a bad example for all the girls in town. You ought to talk to Jerry."

Jerrold did not understand.

"Why, they'll all be setting off to New York to study Art," he protested.

"The town's full of it. Every place you go they talk of nothing else—Art, Art, Art—and they're all dabbling at dishes and drawing figures on tablecloths and sprigging flowers on good mirrors. The place is alive with it."

"That's queer," said Jerry's father. "I can't say I ever noticed we had such a passion for Art among us."

"Well, I reckon they figure to do us Jerry did. She didn't bring home any voice was weak, "you've got to admit it was treating me pretty badly."

He looked up at her, not smiling now. And Jerry stood over him, her eyes melting into his, agonizingly intense. Suddenly she whited. Tears rushed into her eyes, the proud little chin drooped and quivered. She turned, a crushed and broken figure, toward her mother, even in that hour of its renunciation the tender dream of her youth dying hard within her, and cried despairingly:

"I can't help it! Maybe it is a different kind—the feeling is just the same."

She dropped on her knees beside the bed, the pain in her face, the shadow in her eyes, yielding to a joyous radiance as she pressed her lips against his shoulder.

CHAPTER XII

Of Dreams Come True

Jerry's surrender was as complete as her resistance had been. Regardless of the admonitions of the nurse and the restrictions of the hospital, regardless of the presence of her father and mother, who tried studiously to keep their eyes away from her, she hung over Duane, on her knees beside the white bed, kissed him, caressed his face, weeping bitterly. It was Duane himself, with his usual facetious, kindly courtesy, who intervened once in a while to stem the tide of her tumultuous emotions.

"Now, Jerry," he said, taking advantage of a slight subdual of her tears, "you'll have to marry me. You've kissed me and encouraged me and made love to me before witnesses."

Jerry laughed tearfully. "All right, I will," she said tremulously, yet gladly. "And just as soon as you like! Tomorrow, if you say so."

Prudence and Jerrold turned to them then anxiously, and Duane's eyes searched their pleading faces. He drew Jerry closer in his arm.

"This Prudence of yours told me," he said, with a tender smile to apologize for his use of that sacred name, "she told me that if that first warm awakening up stops short on better acquaintance, it is nothing. But if it goes on and on it is love at first sight. Let's wait a little, Jerry, and give ours a chance to go on and on. Just a little!"

Prudence's slender figure, which had stiffened into anxious rigidity at Jerry's impulsive offer, relaxed softly, and tears of grateful pleasure came to her eyes.

Jerry drooped contentedly against his arm, crooning her happiness. A curious, calculating look took the place of the tender brilliance of her eyes.

"Unless father especially needs you at the factory," she said, carefully wording her delicate thoughts, "you can be a great help to me in my building. And I know enough about it now so that we can easily make a good living for both of us." An exquisite flush suffused her face.

Duane and Jerrold exchanged electrical questioning glances. After all Jerry was still very greatly in the dark about many things. Jerrold, with his unflinching generosity, stepped into the breach.

Now and Then, Not Often, Jerry Talked to Duane of Art.

Art to speak of, but she seems pretty well satisfied with what she did bring. And it's catching. Harmer, it's catching."

Now and then, not often, Jerry talked to Duane of Art. "Just once in a while," she said softly, as they sat together in the early evening, and looked out on the wide lawn with the springing grass of the early spring time, and the great maples just bursting into bud. "Just once in a while, I'm sorry I proved such a failure. I wish I were really a painter—just once. I'd like to paint my Iowa—its great big maples, its ugly, stiff houses the mud in its streets and the bluish of smoke from its soft coal—I'd paint it all, but I'd make it rose and gold and everyone's dreams come true."

12 Years Ago
TODAY

From The Daily of August 29, 1913

The New Decatur city council discussed bond issue questions at length last night.

Messrs. L. W. Borton and H. B. Beard are making an extended tour of the Great Lake region.

Mrs. B. P. Wallace and Miss Helen Bynum are in New York.

Mayor Wolcott advised the council last night
the city was prepared to launch a drive against vagrant negro women.

A young white boy was placed in the county jail last night, charged with having burglarized the Buttrey store.

Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Jones returned last night from an extended eastern trip.

MANY NASHVILLE CARS ARE FOUND
WITHOUT ANY BRAKES ON THEM

The Nashville Tennessee is alarmed over the results of a braking inspection conducted in connection with a safer motoring campaign in that city. Well may the Tennessee be alarmed, because of 1,200 automobiles inspected, it was found that fully one-third of them had defective brakes and many had no brakes at all.

If the absence of brakes on an automobile endangered no lives except the driver, it would be no business of the press, but, unfortunately the lives of all citizens are endangered by people who insist on driving motor vehicles, without affording proper safeguards for them.

The Florence News, in offering a protest, remarks:
"This is not an advertisement for four wheel brakes, but is a mild protest against four wheels and no brakes."

While the figures obtained in the Nashville inspection are for that district only, it would not be unfair to surmise that probably the same ratio would prevail in most any other section one cared to inspect.

Here in Albany and Decatur, it is very likely that we are no better off than the Nashville people. With the constantly increasing highway traffic, it surely is to our best interest to utilize every precaution possible to prevent accidents. Running a car without proper brakes on it, certainly is not one of these precautions.

AGAIN WE ARE REMINDED HOW NATURE HAS BLESSED THE TENNESSEE VALLEY.

As word is received of how one section is suffering because of lack of electric power and another section is suffering because of the lack of enough water to its needs, we are reminded again of how peculiarly fortunate
the Tennessee Valley is.

Here we are not without power, and certainly we have all of the water we need for ordinary uses. While some communities are being forced to adopt stringent regulations to preserve their small water supplies, Albany and Decatur consumers can get all of the water they desire.

Some of the farmers in this section are suffering because wells have gone dry, but our crops are not destroyed and where one well is dry, there usually is another not too far distant, which still gives forth its thirst quenching fluid.

In Knoxville, it is said, the water supply of the city is unusually low and regulations are in force. In Asheville there is a report that water for sprinkling the lawns is no longer available. In sections of the same state, the streams are at such low ebb manufactures of electrical current are unable to generate sufficient power, and lights, when they burn at all, are very dim.

The Alabama Power Company had the foresight to safeguard its waterpower development with steam plants and it is hardly likely that this immediate area will be distressed by lack of current. The company is aiding, as best it can, the power companies of other states where the situation is declared to be acute.

Rivers and creeks are at low stage, of completely dried up. In fact the Tennessee river, in some places, is so shallow one would have no difficulty in wading across, and reports come in that cities even on the Tennessee are needing an additional community water supply. There apparently is no danger, even now, of such a contingency in this section. Verily even the Tennessee river seems to put on a little extra style while passing through the famed valley which bears its name.

DREAM OF NEARLY 500 YEARS, AT LAST WILL BE REALIZED

We, who have dreamed of utilization of the vast power at Muscle Shoals, others who have dreamed of a bridge across the Tennessee river here, and have lived to see both dreams become realities, know little of patience.

The Associated Press recently described the dream visionary people had for 428 years of a canal connecting the North Sea and Mediterranean seas, by means of the Rhine, Doubs and Rhone rivers and the Rhone to Marsel-les canal. For nearly 500 years people dreamed of this great waterway, and now the dream will come true on October 1, when the last rocks that keep the water of the Mediterranean out of the Rhone-to-Marseilles canal will be blasted.

The work will have cost 216,000,000 francs and besides the record for time consumed in its realization it will have surpassed all tunnels in Europe in rock and earth removed.

From the tunnel part of the canal, which is only five miles long, 2,300,000 cubic yards of earth and rock were taken, beating the record of the Saint Gothard and Simpson tunnels in Switzerland which are longer, but much smaller.

When Richelieu came upon the scene of European politics as minister of Louis XIII he found the proposals for this canal in the archives of the state awaiting action.
Religious controversies occupied the attention of France too much at that time to permit attention to such a broad scheme. Richelieu and Louis XIII passed from the scene of action and all the rest of the French kings came and went before the proposition again came to light. It was resurrected in 1820 for a brief inspection and again forgotten until 1840, when a functionary of the public works department drafted a plan for the realization of the project. It took 39 years more to get it before parliament and 24 years more to get it voted. Finally, the creation of a canal from the Mediterranean in the vicinity of Marseilles to the river Rhone at Arles, a distance of 81 miles, was authorized by law in 1903. It took eight years more to complete the preparations for the work, which was begun in 1911, and has continued uninterruptedly since in spite of the World War.

The new waterway completed by the Rhone-to-Marseilles canal is the first to effectively to cut what is called
"The European Isthmus" composed of Holland, Belgium, France, Spain and Portugal and furnish a short cut from the North Sea to the east by water to traffic of importance.

RUMOR THAT CZAR STILL LIVES DOES NOT CONVINCE THE "PASSING SHOW"

The rumor, emanating from Caucasasia that the former Czar of the Russians, is not dead, but is yet alive, does not convince the Passing Show, of London, that the former Russian ruler was not slain at the beginning of the revolutionary outbreak.

A correspondent writing in the London publication says a friend of his has given him information in regard to a new leader, who, if not the Czar, certainly occupies his place in the public's imagination. The correspondent's friend has not personally seen the man referred to, but several Europeans have seen him.

The correspondent adds:
Anyone who dies under rather mysterious circumstances is almost certain, sooner or later, to be "resurrected" by rumor. The cases of such widely diverse characters as Parnell and Lord Kitchener come to mind. The latest instance comes from Caucasasia, where a very strong belief is current that the czar of Russia is still alive.

A friend of mine, who has been doing consular work in Batumi, informs me that, according to well-attested witnesses, the czar has been seen in Tabriz. He cannot personally testify to the fact, but two or three Europeans, whose good faith he cannot doubt, have told him that Nicholas II is undoubtedly alive, and has become the center of an anti-bolshevik movement in Georgia.

The fact that a strong pro-Romanoff movement has been organized in those parts is certainly proved by the sudden accession to power of Reza Khan in Persia, who could not have achieved his success without the removal of bolshevik influences. Also there can be little doubt that the Romanoffs have at last found a leader in the Caucasus. Whether or not he is the ex-czar remains to be seen; but rumor, fed by popular imagination, is certainly busy.

The strongest argument against such a theory is that Lenin would have been the first to clear his party of the murder if he had been in a position to do so—since no single act so prejudiced European feeling against the bolshevik. But, against that, there is this to be said. He only thing that could have roused the peasantry to rebel against Lenin's government would have been the knowledge that the czar was still alive. That alone would have made the bolshevik leader keep silent.

A TRAIN OF THOUGHTS
for the Sabbath and Other Days

BY J. E. BLAIR

"Gratefulness is the least of virtues," so Talland is quoted as saying; but Talland is the same man credited with the remark, "The way to destroy a government, is to become a part of it." The Savior of the world exalted gratitude. He made mention of the failure of certain healed lepers to return and thank Him. He said, "Were there not ten healed, but where are the nine?" All people who take the opposite view of scheming Talland exalt gratitude. Dr. Samuel Johnson said that "gratitude is a fruit of great cultivation; it is not to be found among gross people." Many will recall Shakespeare's saying:
"How sharper than a serpent's tooth is vile ingratitude." Joseph Addison, that prince of writers, said of gratitude that "there is not a more pleasing exercise of the mind." Ingratitude is as hard to bear as a vile serpent's tooth! That great preacher, Henry Ward Beecher spoke of ingratitude as a most painful thing to bear. Indeed he was right. Just as Dr. John S. Park, pastor of the Decatur First Presbyterian church used to say, "Who can answer a sneer?" I say, who can answer ingratitude! It does not answer ingratitude, to people of proper sentiment, to say with Dr. Johnson, that ingratitude is found only among gross people. For the sad thought that there are so many "gross people" so many ingrates, helps nobody that wishes and plans for the best. It cannot be said with satisfaction by people who have the fruit of gratitude, by people "of great cultivation" when they feel the cruel serpent tooth of ingratitude, "I will consider the source"—for the simple reason it is no satisfaction to "good" people to think of the "evil men do"—such take no delight "in the death of the wicked!"

Joseph Addison was quoted as saying of gratitude that it is "a most pleasant exercise of the mind." It might have been to Mr. Addison, but such was not the case with the nine healed lepers! Gratitude is seldom considered, it would seem—that is if the Bible is right in saying
"from the fullness of the heart, the mouth speaketh"— for we seldom hear people talking about their love of gratitude. On the other hand we talk of how "smart," and how "rich" people are, and of how many friends we think we have. And as long as people pay debts, we seem satisfied, we don't require them to exercise gratitude. And if we don't require gratitude in others, one thing certain we will not demand it of ourselves! But the Savior does. Just as He asked about the nine ingrate lepers in the words of that old, old hymn He inquired—
"I gave, I gave my life for Thee, what hast Thou given for Me?" The appeal of Christ and the claims of gratitude reach only those of "great cultivation," they do not reach "gross people."

WE GROW RAPIDLY, by using new inventions as they come along.

Twenty-five years ago there were 2,540 telephones in the city of Brooklyn, 849 in all of Queens county. Now Brooklyn and the surrounding Long Island territory have 500,000 telephones. How much do you suppose 500,000 telephones add to working lives and efficiency of human beings?

THE Arabs fighting against the French in Syria travel in small groups, and scatter when they see a French airplane coming. Nevertheless, they have already learned what air fighting means.

One bomb killed forty Bedouins.
Caravans of camels are seen traveling slowly over the sand, carrying dead and wounded Arabs.

What chance would the old fashioned fasces of infantry have with flying machines bombarding them?

THE Japanese need all their courage for the misfortunes that fall upon them. Sad news from Tokio tells of many drowned, 80,000 homeless, floods sweeping over that vast region. The rushing waters, following a typhoon, ruined towns, washing away mountain sides and wrecking trains.

VIGILANCE committees, shooting to kill, are discouraging bank robbers and other bandits in the west. The National Surety company warns Eastern cities that the "holdup" army is on its way East and that the East should get ready for it.

In the West they offer a reward for every dead bandit, $1,000 per corpse. This makes bandit shooting more profitable, and it has the additional advantages of being legal.

THE Osservatore Romano,
through news obtained from the Vatican, describes the journey of Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia in the Holy Land.

It is reported that Bedouins, all the Arab tribes that Cardinal Dougherty has encountered, have treated him with great respect, welcoming him with all possible pomp.

The Arabs said to believe that the Pope objects to Jewish control of Jerusalem and the Holy Land, are friendly to the Catholic church.

LONG LIFE IS LINKED WITH RECREATION

Some Form of Play or Change of Work Is Needed
Regularly by the Mind and Body for a Person's Best Interests.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

NOT long ago I wrote about the importance of sleep, play and a hobby as preventatives of old age. I told about an interesting article
I had read on this subject.

When I asked a friend of mine if she had a hobby, she considered the question for a moment and then went away to consult the dictionary. She came back laughing and said, "I'm glad I haven't a hobby!"

This is one of the definitions she found in the dictionary. "A hobby is a subject or plan upon which one is constantly setting forth; a favorite and ever recurring theme of discourse, thought or effort; that which occupies one's attention unduly,
or to the weariness of others."

Of course a hobby of that sort would make one a bore, defined by the same dictionary as "a person or thing that wears by ceaseless repetition."

The sort of thing everybody needs to guarantee health may better be described, perhaps, by the word diversion. This is the art of turning aside for any given course.

Occupation or object. Anything which turns the mind from exhausting study, provided it relaxes, amuses and entertains is the art of diversion which will add years to life, provided it is regularly cultivated.

With the report of my friend
fresh in mind, I shall no longer recommend a hobby, but shall refer ever to diversion as the thing necessary to change the course of the daily work and to compose the soul.

Who can doubt that the encourag-ment of some choice diversion will add happiness to the human heart?
Who can doubt, too, that improved health is the handmaiden of happiness?

Every insane asylum contains inmates who have fixed delusions.
They work the same problem over and over and over. They are con-brooding or they are giving away millions. Whatever it is that they are crazy over they never stop doing.

Such persons lack mental freedom.

They are incapable of turning away from the only things which to them seem real. We pity them.

Why, then, do we not pity ourselves if we are so devoted to work that we never cease doing it? If we never walk and to compose the soul.

She turned her dark blue eyes to him
Her sweet face slightly tanned.

He asked her would she take his name
She swore she'd have no other—
Oh, foolish, youth, oh silly maid,
Yet truth there was in what she said.

She had that very day betrothed

MRS. BURNUM'S BRIDGE PARTIES

A series of bridge parties were given this week on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday mornings by Mrs. H. D. Burnum at her home on Johnston street. Gift flowers were used with a profusion of clematis and potted plants as decorations setting a color scheme of green and white was further emphasized in the tally cards and refreshments.

On Wednesday morning Mrs. Elmer Loyd made top scor and Mrs. Dick Harris cut the consolation and they were presented Dutch silver bells. On Thursday Mrs. George Wallace was the lucky contestant at the game while Mrs. Garner Pride cut lowest and the prizes were a sterling silver vase for first prize and a handsome linen towel for consolation. Miss Amanda Pride and Mrs. John C. Bragg received the high score trophy and consolation, a box of powder and a compact, respectively on Friday.

After the usual number of games played each morning, a delectable hot luncheon was served with iced tea and ices by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Morgan Stickney and Mrs. Elmer Loyd.

Mrs. Burnum's guest list for the series included: Mrs. George Wallace, Mrs. John W. Jones, Mrs. H. H. May, Mrs. R. T. Sheppard, Mrs. A. E. Humphrey, Mrs. H. R. Davis, Mrs. J. Y. Hamill, Mrs. J. R. ## EASTERN STAR RECEPTION

A beautiful reception and shower was given on Tuesday evening by members of the Mizpah Chapter No. 19 O. E. S., complimenting the Worthy Patron, Charles N. Uptain and his bride, the latter also being an officer of the chapter.

For the occasion both the chapter room and the dining hall were decorated, a color scheme of pink and white being carried out with flowers and crepe paper.

The following program was rendered: the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Charles Sittason was escorted to the East where three large chairs were decorated in pink and white and then Mr. and Mrs. Uptain were also taken to the East to the strains of the wedding march and seated on two of the chairs over which a large white wedding bell was extended; Mrs. Robert Sittason sang to them, "I Love You Truly." Later little Billy Sittason and Dorothy Sittason, dressed as bride and groom entered while Lohengrin's wedding march was played, and they were attended by Master Thomas Speer and little Dorothy McClure who drew a prettily decorated wagon which was filled with dainty and useful gifts from members of the chapter. Mrs. Charles C. Pfaff then presented to the bride and groom a large silver fruit bowl and tray with a few well chosen words. This was a gift from the chapter. A reading by Annette McCullough was followed by songs by Mr. and Mrs. G. E. McCullough, Miss Evelyn McClure gave a reading that was very much enjoyed, after which Annette McCullough sang. Miss Margaret Sewell gave a reading and the program closed with the telling of the story "A Wedding Day" by Miss McKoin.

The bride and groom followed by the other members then marched to the dining room and were served delicious refreshments in pink and white at appropriately decorated tables, one of which was especially decorated for the honor guests, and their attendants.

CLUB MEETING

The Canal Street Rook Club was entertained at the regular weekly meeting on Friday afternoon with Mrs. Mrs. S. W. Irwin as hostess. Early fall flowers added attractiveness to the room on this occasion.

The two club prizes were awarded to Mrs. J. P. Brock and Mrs. Himes and the guest souvenir to Mrs. W. M. Voorhies. After the interesting games of rook, an ice course was enjoyed.

Besides club members those accepting Mrs. Irwin's hospitality were, Mrs. Fanny Wallace, Mrs. W. E. Roper, Mrs. W. M. Voorhies and Miss Jessie Irwin.

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 29.—Total revenue receipts of the State of Alabama for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1924, amounted to $19,358,454, or $7.93 per capita, it is shown in a summary of the financial statistics of the State issued by the United States Department of Commerce issued here today. This total is reported as being $4,505,339 more than the expenditures of the State during the year, excluding expenses of permanent improvements.

Expenditures of the State for the year are given as $13,934,767, or $5.71 per capita.

The report follows:

"Payments for maintenance and operation of the general departments of Alabama for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1924, amounted to $13,934,767, or $5.71 per capita, including $4,015,397 in appropriations for education to the minor civil divisions of the State; expenses of public service enterprises, $10,500; interest on debt, $907,843, and outlays for permanent improvements, $7,982,282. The total payments, therefore, for expenses, interest, and outlays were $22,835,397. In 1923 the comparative per capita for maintenance and operation of general departments was $5.32, and in 1917, $3.05.

For 1924 the State expenditure for highways amounted to $7,300,229, of which $378,278 was spent for maintenance and $6,921,951 for construction.

"The total revenue receipts for Alabama for 1924 were $19,358, or $7.93 per capita. This was $4,505,339 more than the total payments for

Pertinent Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I am a girl seventeen years of age, and lately have been going out with a young man two years my senior. This young man had been very friendly with me of my best friends for nearly two years. This girl does not know that I am going with him. The young man also continues to see the other girl. I would not like to deceive her but I like him very much. Please advise me whether or not to continue seeing this young man.

WORRIED BROWN EYES: Since this young man is not engaged to your friend it is his privilege to see you and any of his other friends as often as he chooses. You must not feel, therefore, that you are "deceiving" your friend because you are sharing the attention of one of her friends. On the contrary, this mutual friend should be another bond between you.

this court is referred to and made a part hereof as fully as if set forth herein.

Thereafter the plaintiff's application for temporary injunction in said cause was set down to be heard at Birmingham, Ala., on July 30, 1925, before United States Circuit Judge R. W. Walker and District Judges Henry D. Clayton and W. I. Grubb, in accordance with the statutes in such cases made and provided.

Said cause came on to be heard before said three Judges and during the hearing of said application for temporary injunction before said Judges it was suggested that the parties might be able to reach a mutual agreement touching the matters and things in issue between them, and the parties in open court having agreed that the hearing be postponed for a period of thirty days to enable them to negotiate such agreement, an order and decree pursuant to such agreement was made and entered by said three Judges on the 30th day of July 1925. Under said order the hearing of plaintiff's said application for temporary injunction was continued for a period of thirty days from that date and the restraining order theretofore issued was decreed to remain meantime in full force and effect.

Now on this day come the parties and respectfully show that said matters and things at issue between them have been settled by an agreement made and entered into by plaintiff and said commission on August 25, 1925. Under and by the terms of said agreement, a schedule of rates and charges has been agreed to to apply for the water service of plaintiff at Albany, Decatur and Fairview, Alabama. Said agreement and said schedule of rates have been approved by the councils of said municipalities of Albany, Decatur and Fairview. Said agreement and said schedule of rates has been filed with and approved by the Alabama Public Service Commission as shown by its report and order in its Docket No. 4674, on August 28, 1925. A copy of said agreement of plaintiff and said commission, dated August 25, 1925, including a copy of said schedule of rates and a copy of said Commission's report and order approving said agreement and schedule of rates issued on August 28, 1925 in its Docket No. 4674 are filed in this court in this cause on this day.

Under paragraph 1 of said agreement between plaintiff and said commission, it is provided and agreed that the rates heretofore filed by plaintiff with the Alabama Public Service Commission on to-wit May 22, 1925 to become effective as of July 1, 1925, under which plaintiff's service is now being rendered by virtue of the restraining order of this court, shall be approved and made effective as plaintiff's rates for the quarter beginning July 1, 1925 only, and that on and after October 1, 1925 the said schedule of rates agreed to as aforesaid by plaintiff and said commission, shall be effective.

Under said agreement of plaintiff and said Commission it is further agreed that the bond which has been executed by plaintiff and filed in this court in this cause may be, with the consent of the Court, released and cancelled and plaintiff discharged from all liability thereunder.

Under and by the terms of said agreement between plaintiff and said Commission, it is provided that the Judge of this court would be requested by proper order, to be agreed upon by the attorneys of said parties, to dismiss this case and that the costs of suit in this Court be paid by plaintiff, which may be amortized by it as an operating cost during a period of five years.

Come now the parties to this suit, and agree that the following order and decree be made and entered in this cause, to-wit:

Upon consideration of the matters and things herein and of the within agreement of the parties hereto, it is ordered, adjudged and decreed as follows:

1. That the rates of plaintiff for its water service in the municipalities of Albany, Decatur and Fairview, Alabama, as set out in its revised schedule filed with Alabama Public Service Commission on to-wit May 30, 1925 to be effective as of July 1, 1925, now in effect under and by virtue of the restraining order issued by the Judge of this court in this cause on to-wit July 14, 1925, shall be and remain in effect as just, reasonable and lawful charges of plaintiff for its said services on and after July 1, 1925 until and including the 30th day of September, 1925.

2. The bond heretofore executed by plaintiff, Alabama Water company, and filed in this cause under and in accordance with the said restraining order issued herein on July 14, 1925, be and the same is hereby released, cancelled and set aside and plaintiff discharged from all liability thereunder.

3. The costs of this suit in this court are taxed against the plaintiff, for which let execution issue. Under said agreement of plaintiff and said commission, the amount of such costs may be authorized by plaintiff as a cost of operation of its said utility plant during a period of five years.

Made and entered at Montgomery, Alabama, this the 28th day of August 1925.

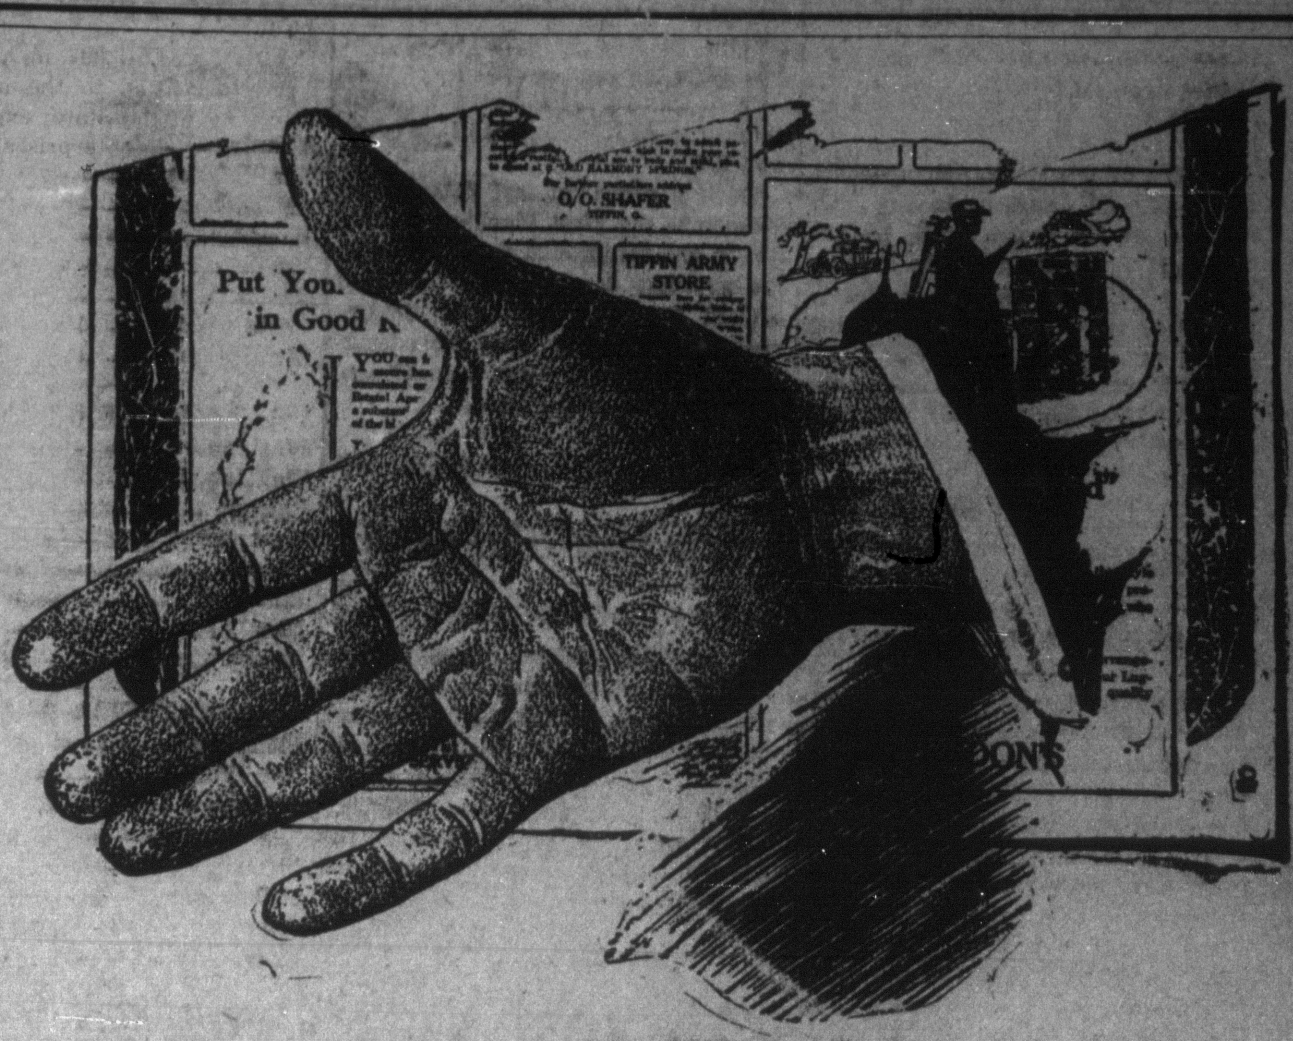

The within and foregoing decree and order is hereby agreed to and same may be entered by the court pursuant to agreement of parties herein, as of date of August 28, 1925.

In witness whereof we, the solicitors of record for plaintiff and defendants, hereunto set our hands on this the 28th day of August, 1925.
